6. Complex practical individual task

Complex practical individual task (CPIT) is a form of organization of education, which aims to deepen, generalize and consolidate the knowledge that students receive in the process of learning, as well as the application of this knowledge in practice. CPIT is performed by students independently under the guidance of teachers, it is a completed theoretical or practical work within the curriculum of the course, which is performed on the basis of knowledge, skills and abilities acquired in the course of lectures and practical classes.

CPIT from the discipline «International law of obligations» consists of two components:

1. The theoretical part.
2. Practical part.

I. Theoretical part complex practical individual task . The theoretical part of CPIT (essay, scientific article, theses) is devoted to the narrow problems of the course (the topic of the scientific work can be proposed by the student himself and agreed with the scientific supervisor) or can be chosen by the student from the topics listed below.

1. The concept of lex mercatoria in international mandatory law.
2. Harmonization, adaptation and unification of norms of international private law in terms of legal regulation of obligations.
3. Parties in an obligation with a foreign element.
4. The conflict rule: concepts, features, structure.
5. The problem of qualification and the conflict of qualification in international private law.
6. The essence and content of imperative norms in international private law.
7. General provisions on ensuring the fulfillment of an obligation with a foreign element.
8. Unnamed contracts in international binding law.
9. Contract of sale in international binding law.
10. Rome I and Rome II in private international law.
11. INCOTERMS: legal features of application.
12. Creating a threat to the life, health, property of an individual or legal entity.
13. General grounds of liability for property damage in international private law.
14. Grounds for liability for moral damage in international private law.
15. Unreasonably acquired property that is not subject to return.

The work is presented in the form of a presentation and defended using multimedia tools in the presence of other students.

I. The practical part of the complex practical individual task involves the student creating a glossary of terms from the studied scientific topic, developing tests, solving a situational problem from the chosen topic.

7. Student-self study

Student-self study, as one of the forms of assimilation of educational material in the time free from compulsory classes and without the participation of the teacher, involves a personally-oriented organization of the student's self-education. The organization of Student-self study requires special attention, because part of the questions of each topic are submitted for independent study by students, and the material intended for learning during independent work is submitted for the exam. Student-self study is ensured by the necessary educational and methodical means (including lecture notes, educational and methodical developments for independent study of the discipline, periodicals). Students have the opportunity to study the educational material independently in the library, classrooms and computer classrooms using the Internet, as well as at home (when receiving the appropriate package of educational and methodological literature).
